

Cabbage Moths and Butterflies

Cabbage moths and butterflies lay their eggs only on plants in the family Brassicaceae. Nearly all cruciferous vegetable crops are attacked, but some are favoured over others. These include broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, Chinese cabbage, cauliflower, collard, kale, kohlrabi, mustard, radish, turnip, and watercress.

Diamondback Cabbage Moth

Cabbage moth

Small cabbage white butterfly

Small cabbage white butterfly

Large cabbage white butterfly